

Payne County Youth Services Re-Accredited by the Stillwater Area United Way

Payne County Youth Services was recently re-accredited by the Stillwater Area United Way. UW agencies must undergo the re-accreditation process a minimum of every 5 years. “It is nice to know that UW agencies are selected by strict criteria”, stated Janet Fultz, PCYS executive director. “We are very honored to be a United Way Agency and appreciate everything the Stillwater Area United Way does for all of its partner agencies, including PCYS. From fundraising, to providing volunteers through the UW Volunteer Center, to setting a high bar for partner agencies, the UW does so much to assist in making our communities the best places to live.

“SAUW is pleased to be able to partner with and provide support to PCYS”, stated Sheri Carter, executive director of the Stillwater Area United Way. “This agency provides invaluable services to the youth of Payne County and their families. Accreditation committee member Dr. Bruce Crauder, remarked what a wonderful agency PCYS is and how impressed he was with his review of them.”

“We are certified by many agencies and organizations”, said Fultz, “but none is a greater honor to us than the approval of the United Way! “
